SB7078/HB7008 MENTAL HEALTH: Requirement for mental health professionals to warn victim or group of people.

Sen. Massey, Becky

Rep. Zachary, Jason

Summary:

Revises current statute relative to mental health professionals' duty to protect by deleting language related reporting requirements surrounding actual threats of bodily harm against a clearly identified victim and replacing such language with a duty for a mental health professional or behavior analyst to also report intent for or perceived actual threat of bodily harm against a clearly identified victim or a group of people, such as school or day care students, people at a place of worship and others. Removes the stipulation that the professional must believe the service recipient is likely to carry out the threat. Retains the requirement for the professional or analyst to take reasonable care to warn of or take precautions to protect the identified victim or group of people and adds the stipulation that the professional or analyst must report the threat to the department of mental health and substance abuse or the local law enforcement agency with appropriate jurisdiction. Relieves from civil or criminal liability or professional disciplinary action a professional or analyst who makes a reasonable attempt to act in accordance with this section. Provides that the legislation takes effect upon becoming law and applies to acts occurring on or after that date.
